way to register new customers.

GlobalSign CustomerID

500

times more cost efficient way to register new customers

Key Features:

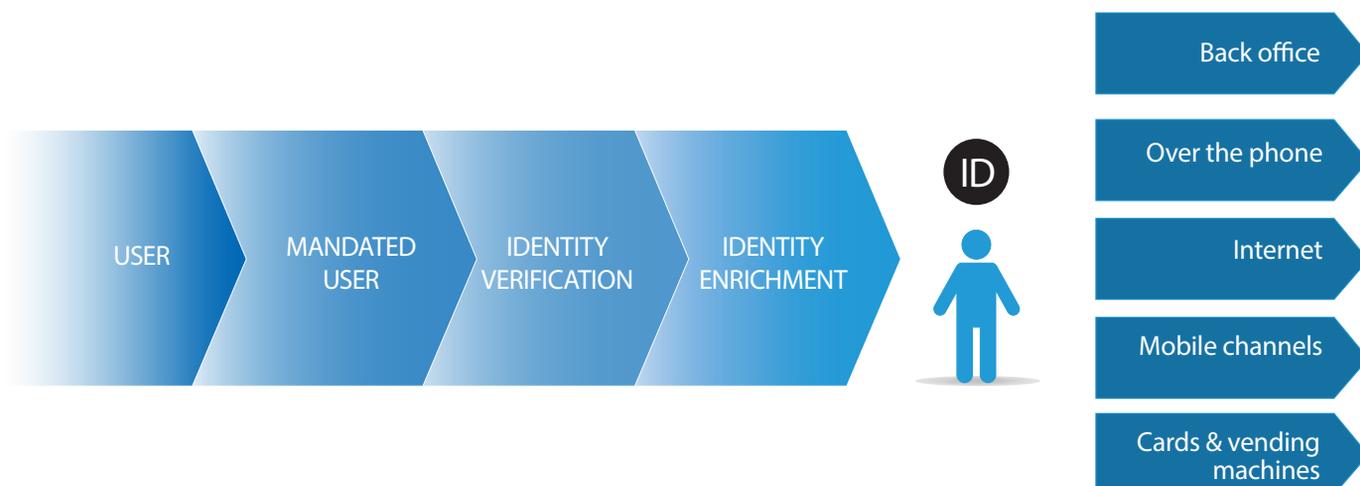

- Customers can perform self-registration and self-service
- Outsource identity management for partners and customers
- Configurable registration work-flows for customized processes
- Centralized identity management and authorization for e-services
- Customers can mandate organizations or other persons in e-services

With GlobalSign CustomerID, you can outsource the identity management of your e-services to the customers and companies using those services. It is no longer necessary for the service or content provider to manage the identities in their partner or customer network, as the users can do it themselves.

GlobalSign CustomerID has been built to minimize the cost of identity management for the provider company through a design that includes many helpful self-service functions and integrations to 3rd party verified customer data.

These electronic customer relationship management methods can result in up to 500-fold savings compared to physical customer service when dealing with a user base that reaches hundreds, thousands or even millions in numbers.

GlobalSign CustomerID

The identity verification and enrichment processes provided by GlobalSign CustomerID ensure that different service channels have one consistent view of customer identity, entitlements (i.e., roles and attributes) and mandates given by 3rd party persons or organisations.

When Separation of Duties is required due to regulatory mandates, GlobalSign CustomerID provides configurable approval workflows, thus allowing various ways to separate authorization and approval.

All the actions performed within the system are logged systematically. This helps the provider company to meet their regulatory requirements and audit demands.
